When emergencies strike, most people flee. A select few stay and fight and save lives.

he fire service is a unique and complex business. In addition to being local heroes, today's firefighters also serve as our nation's first responders. Firefighters are well equipped and tasked to be highly trained and capable of responding to all types of emergencies.

Fire departments need volunteers with various types of knowledge, skills and abilities. Besides the men and women who respond to emergencies, other types of volunteers are also needed. Fire departments need the services of volunteers with experience in business, accounting, marketing, medicine, law enforcement, mechanics, construction, computers and fundraising.
